My dear friend

The learned Miss Faithfull, must not return to England until you has taken by the hand yourself & some other Bostonians, whom I might name.

I need not say to you who Miss Faithfull is. I may however say to you that the more you see of her the more you will like her.

I hope your dear wife is in comfortable health. My wife is better & I am so (nearly so) & in fine -

With great regard your friend

Genl Smith
